Week no. 4

Weekly Activity

During this week, our team concentrated on refining the chat app and making it more reliable. Most of the backend and frontend features were already in place, so our goal was to improve usability and fix small issues. I prepared the weekly report draft and helped organize everyone's contributions so that progress was clearly reflected.

From the frontend side, I worked on optimizing the way messages are displayed. I improved how long LaTeX formulas are wrapped inside the chat window, making sure they don't break the layout. I also helped test the code snippet feature, adjusting styles so the syntax highlighting looks consistent across different themes. Overall, this week was more about polishing what we had, which brought the app closer to feeling like a complete product.
